This matter is before the court on Defendant's motion requesting termination of supervised release. ECF No. 79. The United States Probation Office has notified this court by letter that it does not oppose Defendant's request. The United States Attorney concurs with the position of the Probation Office.

Title 18 United States Code Section 3583(e) provides that

The court may, after considering the factors set forth in section 3553(a)(1), (a)(2)(B), (a)(2)(C), (a)(2)(D), (a)(4), (a)(5), (a)(6), and (a)(7)--

(1) terminate a term of supervised release and discharge the defendant released at any time after the expiration of one year of supervised release, pursuant to the provisions of the Federal Rules of Criminal Procedure relating to the modification of probation, if it is satisfied that such action is warranted by the conduct of the defendant released and the interest of justice . . . .

Considerations contained in § 3553 include, inter alia, the nature and circumstances of the offense and the history and characteristics of the defendant; the ability to afford adequate deterrence to criminal conduct; the need to protect the public from further crimes of the defendant; and the need to provide the defendant with needed educational or vocational training, medical care, or other correctional treatment in the most effective manner. 18 U.S.C. § 3553.

“The plain language of the statute illustrates that § 3583(e), in the typical case, allows a conduct-based inquiry into the continued necessity for supervision after the individual has served one full year on supervised release.” United States v. Pregent, 190 F.3d 279, 282-83 (4th Cir. 1999).

However, the statute is not exclusively limited to considerations of conduct. The language of the statute notes that the district court ‘may’ terminate supervised release ‘if it is satisfied that such action is warranted by the conduct of the defendant released and the interest of justice.’ The phrase ‘the interest of justice’ does give the district court latitude to consider a broad range of factors in addition to an individual’s behavior in considering whether to terminate the supervised release period.

Id. at 283 (citation omitted).

For over three years, Defendant has been compliant with all terms of his supervised release, including passing all drug tests, being gainfully employed, and reporting as required. Therefore, in the interest of justice, Defendant’s request for termination of supervised release is granted.<sup>1</sup>

IT IS SO ORDERED.

<sup>1</sup>Defendant’s motion also seeks “restored citizenship privileges.” Mot. at 1. The court is unclear as to what privileges Defendant refers, but specifically cautions Defendant that termination of supervised release does not restore any privilege to own or possess a firearm and/or ammunition, which, after conviction of a federal felony, is a lifetime prohibition. See 18 U.S.C. § 922(g).
